HOME TOUR

Lisa Tudor-Jones blends fashion with family life at her Victorian haven in North London

In Lisa Tudor-Jones' home, creativity, family life, and a love for design come together to create a space that is not only beautiful, but also deeply personal and inviting. Nestled in the vibrant neighbourhood of Crouch End, North London, Lisa's Victorian semi-detached townhouse is a testament to her creative vision and love for aesthetic harmony.

Seven years ago, Lisa and her family embarked on a search for a home that would balance their love for city life with the desire for a serene, spacious environment. "We were torn between staying in London or moving out," Lisa recalls. "When we found this property on The Modern House website, we fell in love with it immediately. The space, ceiling heights, and the feeling of calm were exactly what we were looking for."

Lisa, a PR lead in fashion communications, has infused the home's design with her artistic sensibility, creating a warm, contemporary, and welcoming space. Her journey from growing up in North London to establishing a family home in Crouch End reflects a blend of familiarity and new beginnings. "We wanted to be in a lively area with restaurants, bars, and easy access to work. Now, with our children, we appreciate the cafés, shops, and green spaces even more," describes Lisa. "Our favourite bar is Floral Hall, we get flowers from Urban Flowers, local food from Fridge of Plenty, and Sophia Sourdough is a local institution."
